- XI. Mock Trial
- XII. Placement
- XIII. Center for Advanced Professional Development
- XIV. Other Events of the Year
- XV. Conclusion

Appendix A—Prizes and awards; scholarships, class of 1978, honors; student activities and organizations for the year 1977-78.

Appendix B—Faculty bibliography, committee assignments and activities, 1977-78.

Appendix C—Law School Committee of the Board of Trustees; Board of Visitors and Law Alumni Association Council.

Appendix D—Statement of Dean Charles O Galvin at the Seventh Annual Hooding Ceremony, Law Quadrangle, Saturday, May 20, 1978.

I. General Statement

This is my fifteenth and final report as Dean of the School of Law. This is, therefore, my last hurrah. My tenure as dean began on November 1, 1963, and closed September 1, 1978. The average tenure of deans of the 168 ABA approved law schools is about six years. The job is definitely not for the timid or faint-hearted; indeed, one school ran through six deans in about four years. Decanal colleagues in other law schools have wondered—sometimes aloud to me in words of disbelief—why I stayed so long. A strong back and weak mind? a lust for power? the pay? None of these provide the answer. The truth is that there is a great satisfaction in taking a law school of solid regional standing, as we certainly had in 1963, and moving it with the help of many people to one of solid national reputation, as we certainly have now.

I have served on the Accreditation Committee of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar of the American Bar Association and on the Executive Committee of the Association of American Law Schools. Sitting with these two groups affords one an opportunity to acquire a considerable amount of detailed, and often highly confidential, information about American legal education. As one compares the S.M.U. School of Law with others in the nation by any combination of criteria one may select—faculty teaching and research, student profiles, clinical training, library collections, breadth of curriculum, physical facilities, placement opportunities, alumni support, relations with the bench and bar—this Law School will rank well within the top echelon of the 168 ABA approved schools. It is recognized as a school of national standing and each year draws students from throughout this country and from a number of foreign countries.

I point out these facts to indicate my gratitude to many people whose personal efforts and concern have brought it all off. A dean can just push and shove so much; the rest is up to many others; and it is about some of them I wish to make this final report.

I am in the unique position of having known personally all the deans of this Law School. Charles Shirley Potts became dean in 1927 and served until 1947 when he was seventy-five, well past the usual retirement age; Robert Gerald Storey served as dean from 1947 until his retirement in 1959; and John Wilks Riehm served as dean from 1959 until 1963, when he left to become an officer in the Matthew Bender Co., editors and publishers of law and other professional books. Whatever has been done in the past fifteen years was made possible because of the firm and solid base provided by each of these three gentlemen.

Potts had a steadfast belief in quality scholarship and a good library, and the collection we have today is a tribute to his and Professor William Alexander Rhea's early acquisitiveness in securing an excellent working library from wherever and from anyone they could. The Underwood Library collection today is about twenty-third out of 168 schools. This is well within the company of older established state and private schools, and we would not be in this position but for the running start given by Potts and Rhea in those very early days. Potts was unflagging in his zeal for a high quality of performance among students. Although the School was small and struggling, particularly in the Great Depression, he was uncompromising about standards.

Storey had the vision of a legal center where lawyers, judges, and law students would come together in a continuing community of inquiry and mutual exchange of views. The magnificent physical plant we have today was begun by him. He conceived of a series of programs in continuing legal education long before those words reached the vernacular. He saw the advantages of instructing lawyers and judges from abroad in the Anglo American system of justice, and the School's splendid reputation throughout the world in international and comparative law had its incipency in Storey's dream. In this last connection, one of the great thrills of visiting our foreign alumni in their own countries has been to observe the influence they have in public and private professional life. They have great goodwill for this country, respect for its legal system, and admiration for what political philosophers still call the American experiment. These perceptions result from their experience at SMU and the courtesy and hospitality extended them by the entire Dallas community.

Riehm worked closely with Dean Storey and carried forward the programs which Storey had inaugurated and sought to consolidate the gains achieved. He added to the faculty experienced teachers and scholars, improved student performance, and enriched the curriculum. It was also during his tenure that the School moved to the system of reducing required courses and expanding the offerings of electives.

In sum, it is fair to say that each of my predecessors, whom I knew well, was in his own way a hard act to follow. I hope that I have done them no discredit and that they would have approved of what has been built on the foundations which they so ably established.

Of primary importance in the School's development has been its faculty; for whatever other attributes a law school may have, it is nothing without a good faculty. At present we have a somewhat younger than average faculty—bright, intelligent, capable people—who in the long term have the potential of contributing nothing but distinction to the institution. Law school faculties are wont to become politicized and to factionalize. Ours has not done so, not because it lacks diversity of background or divergence of views; indeed, a perfunctory perusal of faculty minutes over any period of time will reveal how divided faculty can be over every issue under the sun. Yet there is one overarching proposition about which the faculty is single minded—a desire for quality performance in students, in teaching, and in research. Even with respect to issues about which the members are sharply divided, each has always been respectful of the other's views, abiding by the result of parliamentary action and confident in the belief that one's colleagues are motivated by what is in the best interests of legal education.

A dean and faculty exist in a kind of creative tension vis-à-vis one another. During my fifteen-year tenure I have had disagreements—from mild to spirited, as the case may be—with every one of my faculty colleagues. I believe that no one of them has nursed a wound too long; I know that I certainly have not. Their forbearance in this respect is one explanation of my staying power for fifteen years, and for their tolerance I am most appreciative.

Complementing faculty competence has been the uncommonly splendid quality of our students. Undergraduate grade averages—in our case from a wide variety of colleges and universities—and law school aptitude test scores are the usual measures of student potential for law study. Ours has been a steadily improving profile; the entering class for the academic year under review was the best ever with a mean undergraduate average of 3.3 and a mean LSAT of about 620. True it is that this is not the “superstar” quality of the very front rank schools who can boast a UGA mean of 3.6 or 3.7 and an LSAT mean above 700. I do not believe, however, that there are intellectual calipers refined and precise enough to measure with any significance gradations among students or among test score percentiles that vary from the 80% to 95% brackets.

This is not to denigrate the high quality of students in the very best schools; all faculties wish for more of them. This is to say that our students are men and women who are highly motivated, with a keen sense of professionalism and an appreciation of the depth and breadth of legal scholarship, and that they compete effectively and successfully in the legal profession.

To continue to recruit men and women of high quality will require ever increasing resources. SMU competes with a group of excellent state supported schools in Texas and in the neighboring states where tuition is quite low. Moreover, when we compete with private schools for the top academic achievers, we are bidding in a market place against such schools as Stanford, Duke, Vanderbilt, Northwestern and others whose programs of scholarships and financial assistance are more generous than ours. Alumni and friends have supported well the annual Law School Fund; others have set up endowed scholarship accounts. Yet the demands on these resources are heavy, and we constantly seek a wider base of support.

In this connection one of the achievements in which I take great personal pride was the establishment of the Hatton W. Sumners Fellowship Program in the fall of 1969. Through the good offices of the Honorable Alfred P. Murrah then Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit, Chairman of the Law School Committee of the Board of Trustees, and a member of the Hatton W. Sumners Foundation, the Foundation Trustees under the Chairmanship of J. Cleo Thompson, a long time distinguished member of the Dallas Bar Association, instituted a program of awarding full three-year law school fellowships to a group of approximately five to seven students in each entering class. The fellowship covers full tuition, board and room, books, and transportation to and from the student's home city twice a year. In addition the student has an opportunity to attend a series of luncheons and dinners for informal discussions with lawyers, judges, and various public figures. It is one of the most generous awards in all legal education. The presence in our academic community of these extraordinarily capable scholars has provided a catalyst for intellectual stimulation and challenge of inestimable value.

All academic institutions had a period of campus turbulence and upset in the sixties and early seventies. Law schools were not immune to these difficulties and stresses, albeit they were affected to a somewhat lesser extent. Those days seem to have passed. The strident voices with their non-negotiable demands have died away; today's students seem unexceptionally intelligent and attractive ladies and gentlemen who are a pleasure to have about, whether in a social setting or in the classroom.

In the fifteen-year period I have watched the numbers of women increase from a handful to a third of the class, and they have competed with great credit on equal terms in all areas of activity—classroom performance, law journal work, moot court and trial advocacy, and so on. The old hands in practice still shake their heads in disbelief when confronted with the prediction that by the year 2000 the legal profession may be nearly half female. Yet it is the fact, and it should be so, for women have ably demonstrated that they constitute a vital new human resource which will shape and guide the legal profession and the legal system to greater things in the future.

My regret is that we have not been more successful in recruiting minorities—blacks and browns; however, taking into account that there are four state supported law schools in Texas in which tuition is quite low we have difficulty in recruiting more than a few minority representatives. Those who have matriculated have performed admirably and gone on to rewarding careers. Even before Bakke was decided we had been following guidelines similar to those described in Mr. Justice Powell's opinion. My hope is that we can within these principles slice out a larger share of minorities in the applicant pool. The challenge is there, and the faculty is certainly committed to meeting it as effectively as possible.

In a jocular mood students often say that the people who really run the Law School are the staff, and certainly, without them we would come to a crunching halt. In the dean's office, in admissions and records, in placement, in word processing, in continuing legal education, in budget preparation and accounting, in development, in the faculty secretarial group, in the print shop and supply room, in Underwood Library, in Lawyers Inn and the Lawyers Inn Dining Hall are men and women who are just as conscientious about their performance as any dean, associate or assistant dean, or faculty member. Their genuine pride in the school and their dedication to it keep the enterprise going like a well oiled machine. In countless thousands of ways they have assuaged tender feelings, calmed anxieties, and in general made the rough ways smooth for students who are working under heavy pressures during the academic year. Faculty folks who are wont to delay having final examinations typed until the last hour, who wait until the printer's deadline has passed to submit manuscripts for typing, who send materials to the printshop a few hours before they are needed in the classroom, or who send librarians in a last minute search for a citation have always found willing and patient hands to provide supporting services for whatever has to be done. The phrase may be trite, but these are the unsung and unheralded heroes and heroines on the premises.

The progress we have made could not have been possible without the support of the bench and bar of the area. Alumni and non alumni have quite literally outdone themselves not only with their continuing financial assistance for students and library acquisitions but also with their willingness to teach courses and seminars, lecture in continuing legal education programs, offer summer clerkships and permanent employment to students, recommend good students to us, and provide in general a climate of goodwill in which it has been a pleasure for me to operate.

Many people could be mentioned by name, but I must say a word particularly about the distinguished Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, the Honorable Joe R. Greenhill, who regularly brings together the deans of the eight Texas law schools, the Board of Bar Examiners, the officers of the State Bar of Texas and the justices of the Court to discuss problems in an atmosphere of mutuality of give and take that has benefited us all. Dissensions, misunderstandings, or misinterpretations have no place within this group, because the Chief Justice with consummate diplomacy and tact does not let such things begin.

This School operates as an integral part of the University community and the larger community around it. Trustees, governors, boards of visitors, alumni councils, the central administration, supporting services from within and without, donors, friends, people of goodwill all about us constitute an enormous positive resource of inestimable value. In particular, this report would not be complete without my expressing to George and Nancy Underwood my personal gratitude and the heartfelt thanks of the University community and the entire legal community for their magnificent gift which made possible the Underwood Law Library.

Academic administration is a continuum; administrators come and go but the basic claims and felt needs go on. Therefore, no one really finishes; all that one can do is push it down the road a bit. My successors will be concerned, as I have been, with the same issues and nagging difficulties: recruiting faculty and students of quality and competence, maintaining as low student-faculty ratios as possible, finding resources to support student aid, faculty research, library enhancement, and so on and on. Academic institutions are fragile, and a measure of support at the right time and place can mark up success or failure.

As I have already indicated above, the collaboration and goodwill of many people in each phase of the School's progress does indeed make the difference.

I could not conclude my list of citations of those who have been so helpful and supportive without expressing what I am sure will be respected as pardonable pride in my wife, Peggy, and our five children for their most important contribution to whatever success I have been able to achieve. I am in their debt for more than I can ever repay. Wives of academic administrators have many and varied duties and responsibilities which only one who has lived the role can fully understand. In countless ways Peggy has served students, faculty and the entire University community—all this without fuss or notice, and no one would deny that the institution has been greatly advantaged through her splendid work.

Children of academic administrators are not left fatherless, but I am sure that mine have often thought they were. Neglect is too strong a word, but inattention probably describes those many instances when institutional concerns somehow overrode parental care and concern. That each child has done admirable academic work and has gone on to a useful career (two are now lawyers) is a tribute to his or her maturity and independence.

Now to some details about the year under review and my final year in office.

In May 1978, the School completed its fifty-third academic year. Just fifty years before the first Law School graduating class of 1928 numbered eleven, including one woman, Mrs. Erin Bain Jones, a generous donor and distinguished alumna who was tragically killed in a small plane crash four years ago.

In May 1978, 211 received the Juris Doctor degree, eighteen, the Master of Laws degree, twenty-six, the Master of Comparative Law degree, and two, the Doctor of the Science of Law degree. These numbers include those completing their degree requirements in August 1977, December 1977, and May 1978.

The following tabular analysis reflects comparative data with respect to degrees conferred or certificates granted during the period 1968-1978.

III. Degree Programs

The School of Law conducted the following major programs during the year 1977-78.

(A) The three-year Juris Doctor program. The requirements are eighty-eight hours of required and elective courses for those students entering in the fall semesters, 1974, 1975, 1976, and ninety hours for those entering in the Fall Semester 1977.

(B) The general graduate program for part-time and full-time students leading to the degree of Master of Laws. The requirements are twenty-four hours of seminar and course work prescribed by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies. A thesis may be submitted for as many as twelve hours of credit.

(C) The graduate program in international and comparative law leading to the degree of Master of Comparative Law. The requirements are twenty-four hours of seminar and course work prescribed by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies. A Certificate in Comparative Law may in the discretion of the faculty be awarded to those students in the international and comparative law program who fail in some particular respect to meet all the grade and hour requirements for the Master of Comparative Law degree.

We continue to have an outstanding group of students from abroad working in the J.D. and M.C.L. programs. These are young men and women from the Middle East, Far East, Latin America and Europe who have finished law schools in their own countries and are judges, lawyers, prosecutors, counselors in the various ministries of government, and the like. They provide an excellent professional dimension in our student life and return to their countries with a high respect for the American system.

(D) The graduate program in research and writing leading to the degree of Doctor of the Science of Law. The requirements are prescribed for the candidate by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies.

(E) The combined Juris Doctor and Master of Business Administration degree. This combined program is offered jointly by the School of Law and the Graduate Division of the School of Business Administration. The program is designed for law practice with a strong business background, and for business careers with a strong legal background. The two degrees may be obtained in four years. Separately, they would require four and a half or five years.

(F) The combined Juris Doctor and Master of Public Administration degree. This program is offered jointly by the School of Law and the Graduate Program in Public Administration of the School of Humanities and Sciences. The program is designed for those persons who desire career opportunities in the public sector. The two degrees may be obtained in four years. Separately, they would require four and a half years.

(G) Effective for the Fall Semester 1978, the faculty has authorized with respect to the Master of Laws program a designation on the diploma of the following areas of special study: Taxation; Corporate and Commercial Law; and Comparative and International Law.

IV. Curriculum

The curriculum in effect for the summer session 1977 consisted of twelve sections of courses and seminars; during the regular session 152 sections of courses and seminars were offered. Under the program for the Juris Doctor degree, the student had to complete forty-two hours of required courses and forty-eight hours of electives, including at least one course involving international and comparative law or jurisprudence and a seminar in which a substantial paper is required.

During the year, new offerings included:

Compensation Systems offered by Professor Vincent S. Walkowiak

Advanced Antitrust Seminar offered by William F. Carroll, Esq.

The mean averages for the Law School Admission Test and undergraduate college scores were 618 (81st percentile) and 3.32 (on a 4.0 scale), respectively, for the class entering in the fall of 1977. The means are calculated on the basis of all those admitted including special admissions pursuant to personal interviews and consideration of exceptional circumstances.

During the year, the number of women students numbered 215, students from abroad thirty-four, and minority students (Black, Chicano, and American Indians) nineteen. As reflected in the tabulation, the first-year students represented thirty-four states and five other countries. Their undergraduate work was done in 104 different colleges and universities—twenty-one Texas schools and eighty-two out-of-state schools.

Students and faculty have accepted a large measure of responsibility in the recruitment process, and the diverse geographical representation attests to the worth of these efforts.

VI. Underwood Law Library

Acting Law Librarian Thomas M. Steele holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts from Oklahoma State University, Master of Library Science from the University of Oregon and Juris Doctor from the University of Texas at Austin.

At the end of the 1977-78 fiscal year, the Underwood Law Library collection totaled 238,211 volumes. Expenditures for library operations amounted to $333,628. The Library received a number of gifts both of books and funds including a large contribution from Dallas lawyers. New acquisitions were made in all subject areas represented in the Law School curriculum. Funds from the Bromberg Family Endowment were used for the purchase of books on corporation, securities, and general business law. Endowed funds made possible the continued expansion of the Erin Bain Jones Sea and Space Collection. The Josephine Short Lynch Memorial Fund, established by Dean and Mrs. Charles O. Galvin, was utilized to support the general collection.

Thomas M. Steele, appointed Assistant Law Librarian July 1, 1977, functioned as Acting Law Librarian from mid-July through the remainder of the year. Earl C. Borgeson, formerly of the Harvard Law School Library, Stanford University Library, and the Los Angeles County Law Library, accepted the position of Professor and Law Librarian, effective June 1, 1978.

The full-time staff consisted of four professional librarians and eight and one-half full-time equivalent clericals. The Library was open 103½ hours per week during the regular sessions, 89½ hours per week during the summer sessions and forty-nine hours per week during recesses. With strong collections in taxation, securities, labor law, and foreign and international law, it serves as a major resource for the law school and for the Dallas-Fort Worth legal community.

VII. Alumni Affairs, Law School Fund, Student Aid

Assistant Dean for External Affairs Edward O. Coultas holds degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Juris Doctor from Southern Methodist University and a Master of Science from Indiana State University.

The Law Alumni Association Council was chaired by William D. Powell, Esq. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Heath hosted the Houston area alumni at their home on January 23, 1978. On June 29, 1978, the Law Alumni Association hosted its annual reception at the Texas Bar Convention in Fort Worth. In August, the Association hosted a reception at the annual American Bar Association meeting in New York City.

The Dean addressed El Paso area alumni at a reception and dinner hosted by alumnus Russell M. Aboud, Esq. Throughout the year, alumni in the Dallas-Fort Worth area were selected at random and invited to lunch at Lawyers Inn with the Dean, members of the faculty and student body. These informal luncheons were well received and provided a forum for the exchange of information about the school, its students and the profession.

Edward A. Copley, Esq. was Chairman of the 1977-78 Law School Fund. In addition to solicitation by mail, Mr. Copley headed a telefund at the Law School which ran for eleven nights and involved seventy-eight alumni as solicitors. Under his direction, gifts to the Law School totaled $158,285.37.

The third annual Law Library Fund of 1977-78 was chaired by John L. Estes, Esq. All law firms and solo practitioners in Dallas were asked to support voluntarily the Law Library on the basis of $25 per lawyer (the approximate cost of one book). Dallas attorneys responded with gifts totaling $17,280.

A summary of total gifts received during the year and comparison with the two previous years follows:

	1975-76	1976-77	1977-78
Law School Fund	$141,628.00	$176,012.15	$158,285.37
Special Law Library Fund	10,160.00	11,880.00	17,280.00
Restricted Current
Operating Gifts	371,362.44	284,116.50	244,547.00
Endowment Gifts	58,558.26	324,363.51	110,920.00
Grants & Contracts			55,600.00
Total	$581,708.70	$796,372.16	$586,632.37

In September, 1977, Dean and Mrs. Galvin were invited by the Korean Legal Center to participate in the Fifth Lawasia Conference, a conference sponsored by eighteen free nations of Southeast Asia, the Orient, and Australia and New Zealand. Dean Galvin was a principal speaker at the opening assembly. The Korean Legal Center received gifts from the S.M.U. Law School when the Center was first established in 1953. The Center publications continue to mention with gratitude this encouragement and assistance from S.M.U. Dean and Mrs. Galvin were guests of the Korean S.M.U. Alumni for dinner, then went to Tokyo where they were guests of the S.M.U. Law Alumni of Japan, and then to Taipei where they were greeted by the President of the Republic of China (Taiwan) and were hosted by the large delegation of Chinese S.M.U. alumni not only of the Law School but of the S.M.U. Engineering and Business Schools.

VIII. Publications

Two student-edited law reviews are published by the School of Law, the Southwestern Law Journal and the Journal of Air Law and Commerce. The operation and management of these law reviews are vested in their respective Boards of Editors. The Boards are made up of senior students who have exhibited exceptional ability for legal research and writing. Other students are selected to participate on the basis of scholarship and through a writing competition conducted each year. In both publications, the work of students has produced periodicals of permanent value to the legal profession.

The Southwestern Law Journal is published five times each year and reaches law schools, attorneys and judges throughout the United States and abroad. Each issue includes articles by prominent legal scholars and practitioners dealing with significant questions of local, national, and international law. In addition, articles by students analyze recent cases, statutes and developments in the law. Each year one issue of the Journal is devoted to an annual Survey of Texas Law and contains articles by attorneys, law professors, and judges concerning current developments in the laws of Texas.

The Journal of Air Law and Commerce, a quarterly publication of the School of Law, was founded in 1930, and has been at S.M.U. since 1962. It is circulated throughout the world. Articles by distinguished lawyers, economists, government officials, and scholars deal with domestic and international problems of the airline industry, private aviation and of aerospace problems. Also included are student works on a variety of topical issues, student comments, casenotes on recent decisions, book reviews and editorial comments.

On April 20-22, 1978, the Journal of Air Law and Commerce sponsored its regular annual symposium on Beyond the Ordinary: Problems Unique to Air Law.

The Human Rights Journal was previously published quarterly by the School of Law and the Section of Individual Rights and Responsibilities of the American Bar Association. It was edited jointly by members of the faculty and students and included articles by leading scholars and practitioners and notes and bibliographies by students on legal topics of humanistic concern. This year the publication was published by the American Bar Association in magazine form; however, this past year, faculty and students edited the last two issues of Human Rights in its Journal form.

The Advocate is a weekly newspaper published by students about the Law School community.

A number of other publications—papers, memoranda, booklets, etc.—both formal and informal—were released during the year under the auspices of students and faculty.

IX. Legal Clinics

Steele

Reed

Maxine T. McConnell, Director of Legal Clinic, has a Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws from Southern Methodist University.

Samuel R. Miller, Director of the Civil Clinic (Federal Taxation) has a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and Business Administration from Austin College, a Master in Professional Accounting from the University of Texas at Austin and a Juris Doctor from Harvard Law School.

Associate Director of the Legal Clinic (Civil) Cynthia Hollingsworth has a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Texas at Austin and a Juris Doctor from St. Mary's University School of Law.

Associate Dean for Clinical Education, Professor Walter W. Steele, Jr., continues to exercise overall supervision for our clinical components which consist of the Civil Cases Clinic, the Criminal Justice Clinic, the Federal Taxpayers Clinic, and the Legal Extern Program.

Maxine T. McConnell is Director of the Civil Cases Clinic, assisted by Cynthia Hollingsworth, Associate Director, who has replaced Mr. John A. Dennis, who recently resigned the position of Associate Director to enter private practice. As this goes to press we must sadly report the untimely and tragic death of Mr. Dennis in an automobile accident.

This year fifty-one students were enrolled in the Civil Cases Clinic, handling a total of 246 cases. In addition to divorce, adoption and other family-related cases, the clinic students have represented clients in estate and probate matters, social security matters, landlord-tenant disputes, and a wide range of other cases, including matters in federal courts and in the state appellate courts. In a recent juvenile case, the Texas Supreme Court decided a case in favor of the position taken by clinic students who were representing their client on appeal.

Several Civil Clinic students have participated in an experimental program with the Dallas Deaf Action Center. The Center referred deaf clients to the Clinic and all communication was by "signing." Certified interpreters worked with the students during conferences and court appearances. The communication difficulties encountered made the experience unique for the Clinic students. As a result of this project some of the courts and members of the practicing bar have been made more aware of the need for qualified interpreters for the deaf community.

Associate Professor Roark R. Reed is the Director of the Criminal Justice Clinic. The Criminal Justice Clinic continues to be funded jointly by a grant from the Texas Criminal Justice Council and by general Law School funds. This year, a total of twenty-six students enrolled in the Criminal Justice Clinic and handled 223 cases, primarily misdemeanors.

An interesting development in the Clinic during the past year has been a program in cooperation with the Dallas Police Department which allows clinic students to ride shifts with police officers. Relating to a police officer in other than an adversarial way has increased the student's awareness of the officer's sensitivity to human problems. This has resulted in more realistic appraisals of police conduct and more productive police interviews.

The Federal Taxpayers Clinic has made significant progress during the last year, and now seems to be on solid footing. We continue to rely heavily on the cooperation of the United States Internal Revenue Service and it appears that such cooperation is ongoing. This Clinic and its mode of operation are unique in the United States. It is supervised by Mr. Samuel R. Miller, a lawyer and certified public accountant, and a total of twenty-five students were enrolled in the Clinic during the year in which 164 calls for taxpayer assistance were handled.

The Clinic does not prepare tax returns; rather, it assists persons who are being audited by the Internal Revenue Service. The issues covered by the students include medical deductions, casualty losses, business expenses, child care expenses, and so on.

To expedite the linkage between the Clinic and taxpayers, the Internal Revenue Service is now sending a letter signed by the District Director with each notice for audit mailed to taxpayers referring the taxpayer to the Clinic if he wishes to be considered for representation by law students under the supervision of the Clinic Director. This letter is sent to all taxpayers unless someone signed the return of the taxpayer as a paid preparer.

The Legal Extern Program is supervised by Associate Dean Steele. Last year, thirty-one students participated. The students are placed in various governmental and institutional legally-related agencies in Dallas County, such as the U.S. District Court, District Attorney's Office, Federal Trade Commission, and the like. These students receive academic credit for working in those placements under the supervision of the staff of those agencies. The program provides students with an excellent opportunity to gain insights into practice skills as they relate to the performance of legal work in institutional settings.

X. Moot Court

In the 1978 Texas Young Lawyers Association Moot Court Competition, the School was represented by Henryk S. Borecki, Barbara J. Houser and Gary E. Keane. The team advanced to the semi-final round of the Competition.

In the Region X National Moot Court Competition, the School was represented by Mary Emma Ackels, D. Paul Dalton and S. Lee Hancock. The team placed third and received the award for best brief. In the regional competition for the Jessup International Moot Court Competition, the School was represented by Bruce E. Anton and Barbara J. Staubus. Penny D. Jones also participated on the Jessup team as researcher and memorial writer.

In the Region XIII Competition for the National Appellate Advocacy Competition, sponsored by the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association, the School was represented by two teams. J. Mitchell Bell, Mark C. Enoch and Martin L. Lowy constituted one team, and Mary Emma Ackels, Martin L. Camp and D. Paul Dalton, the other. The teams placed first and second in the Competition, respectively. The team of Bell, Enoch and Lowy represented the School of Law in the final rounds of the Competition held in New York City in conjunction with the 1978 Annual Meeting of the American Bar Association. The team was defeated in the quarter-final round in New York.

Douglas D. Fletcher served as Chief-Counsel of the Moot Court Board for the academic year and D. Paul Dalton was chosen as Chief Counsel-elect.

The Dallas Court of Civil Appeals (Judges Clarence A. Guittard, Ted M. Akin and Ted Z. Robertson) heard the final arguments in the Russell Baker Moot Court Competition in which Brian D. Melton and Gordon M. Shapiro were selected winners and William H. Betts and Jamie A. Drabeck were selected runners-up. Brian D. Melton was selected by the panel as the best oralist.

Barbara J. Houser was elected to The Order of the Barristers, a national honorary organization which stresses excellence in appellate advocacy and brief writing skills in Law School Moot Court programs.

XI. Mock Trial

The National Mock Trial Competition is co-sponsored by the Texas Young Lawyers Association and the American College of Trial Lawyers. This year more than seventy-five schools participated in the competition in seven regional competitions. Southern Methodist University was the host for Region Six.

The competition, held over a three-day period from January 27-30, 1978, consisted of twenty-two three-hour trials, each of approximately three-hour length. Each trial of four witnesses was judged by a panel of three volunteer members of the practicing bar or bench. Each trial began with an opening statement and proceeded through the direct and cross-examination of two plaintiffs' and two defendants' witnesses and concluded with closing arguments. The student teams were judged on their litigation skills. The final round was held on Saturday morning, January 30, 1978, judged by a distinguished panel of Federal District Court Judges composed of Sarah T. Hughes, Patrick E. Higginbotham, and Robert M. Hill.

In addition to organizing and hosting the competition, Professor Vincent S. Walkowiak sponsored two three-member teams in the competition: one team consisted of David M. Prichard, Barry J. Sorrels and Mark S. Werbner; the other, Gay G. Cox, Marc S. Culp and David C. Mattka. This is the second year that Southern Methodist University has participated in the competition; the 1976-77 teams were Paul N. Gold and William C. Kamenjarin, and Susan S. Gorham and J. Christopher Cimaglia. The coach was David L. Whaley.

The purpose of the National Mock Trial Competition is to encourage training in trial advocacy at the law school level. Coupled with the Moot Court Program, it exposes students to a realistic litigation competition as a complement to the appellate advocacy competitions.

XII. Placement

Interviews took place during the months of September, 1977, through May, 1978, and representatives of interviewing firms came from every section of the country. There were 2,000 separately scheduled student interviews. A tally as of November 15, 1978, of the seniors graduating in May, 1978 reflects the following facts concerning placement:

Self Practitioners	10
Law Firms	110
Corporate Legal Counsel	23
Military Service (JAGC)	1
State and Federal Government Agencies	13
Judicial Clerkships	8
Other Legal Activities	16
Not Reported or Uncommitted*	30
Total	211

* Some graduates have been waiting for their Bar Examination results before seeking employment.

XIII. Center for Advanced Professional Development

Associate Dean for Advanced Professional Development S. Theodore Reiner received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania; his Juris Doctor and LL.M. degrees from Georgetown University Law Center.

The Center for Advanced Professional Development is a division of Southern Methodist University School of Law. Through it the Law School offers a broad range of educational opportunities in domestic and international legal and commercial fields by offering courses, seminars, symposia and a continuing series of publications. Each program offered by the Center is designed for the practitioner who must frequently, if not continually, anticipate and handle complex problems. Thus, emphasis is placed on new ideas in planning for situations that one may reasonably expect to arise in the practice of law. Speakers who lecture at the seminars and symposia have been practitioners and scholars from various sections of the country. The speakers have been selected for their ability and competence in their particular subject and for their reputation as a seasoned instructor.

During the academic year under review the Law School not only continued its partnership of long standing with the Practicing Law Institute of New York and the Dallas Bar Association, but has endeavored to expand its affiliation by contracting to offer programs jointly with the Energy Bureau, Inc. in New York and the Bureau of National Affairs in Washington, D.C. By doing so, the School has been able effectively to deliver programs of interest to the professional community. The programs offered broaden the scope of the general Law School curriculum and offer students as well as the practicing lawyers the opportunity to hear outstanding lecturers. SMU law students and faculty are admitted to all programs tuition free and may obtain program material at cost.

XIV. Other Events of the Year

A Trial Club was formed during the Fall of 1977, under the faculty sponsorship of Professor William V. Dorsaneo and Professor Vincent S. Walkowiak, and conducted the first annual Geary, Stahl, Koons, Rohde & Spencer Mock Trial Competition. Federal Judge Robert M. Hill presided at the final trial in which William L. Smith and Barry J. Sorrels were selected by a jury as the 1977 winners. The team of Danny D. Burns and Florance E.B. Scott Morgan was selected as runners-up.

The 1977-78 Trial Club student Chairman was T. Michael Wall; David C. Mattka was chosen as Chairman-elect.

On Friday, September 20, 1977, the Student Bar Association dedicated the Student Lounge, located in the ground floor of Storey Hall, to Professor Emeritus of Law Clyde Emery.

On Friday, February 24, 1978, the School of Law was host to Langdell Professor and Associate Dean Robert E. Keeton of Harvard University Law School, who delivered the first Roy R. Ray Lecture. The Roy R. Ray Lectureship is made possible through the generosity of Professor Emeritus Roy Robert Ray of the SMU School of Law. The lecture to the Law School students entitled "Statutes, Gaps and Values in Tort Law," was followed by a luncheon in the Umphrey Lee Student Center. In the evening, faculty and wives, selected students, and other guests were invited to a reception at the R. L. Thornton Alumni Center honoring Professor and Mrs. Keeton and Professor and Mrs. Ray.

On Thursday, March 20, 1978, at the R. L. Thornton Alumni Center, the School of Law was host to a joint meeting of the Board of Visitors, the Law School Committee of the Board of Trustees and Officers and Directors of the Southern Methodist University Law Alumni Association Council. Members of the Law faculty, student representatives, and others were also invited. The participants met in the afternoon with members of the standing Law School committees. In the evening a buffet dinner was held at which all of the participants and Law School faculty, their spouses, and selected students were in attendance.

On Saturday, May 20, 1978, the School of Law had its seventh formal ceremony of hooding the Juris Doctor candidates. The event, which traditionally is held in the Law School Quadrangle, was moved to McFarlin Auditorium because of rain. Following the ceremony a reception for students, parents and friends was held in Lawyers Inn.

The Student Bar Association planned and hosted during the year a series of speakers, including well known criminal attorney from Houston, Percy Foreman; Barbara Jordan, Congresswoman from Texas; Leon Jaworski, former Special Watergate Prosecutor and Houston attorney; William F. Buckley, newspaper columnist; former United States Senator Sam J. Erwin, Jr.; CBS News Law Correspondent Fred Graham; Commissioner Internal Revenue Jerome Kurtz; former Texas Governor John Connally; former Prime Minister of Great Britain Sir Harold Wilson, and Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe.

XV. Conclusion

As this, my final report, goes to press, a long-time, much loved, and well respected colleague, Professor A. J. Thomas, Jr. is acting as Dean ad interim. I have utmost confidence in his capability to perform the task with excellence. A search committee chaired by Dean Eugene Bonelli of the School of the Arts is reviewing the credentials of a number of prospective candidates. They will, I am sure, welcome suggestions and nominations from anyone.

To faculty, students, alumni, and others who have expressed such warm and gracious sentiments in connection with my resignation, I am especially appreciative.

To all who have assisted me or contributed to the welfare of the School in any way, I extend my grateful thanks.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES O'NEILL GALVIN
Dean, School of Law

Appendix D

Hooding Ceremony, Law Quadrangle, May 20, 1978.

Will you please stand or remain standing, and Ms. Gwen Eisenstein, immediate Past Vice President of the Student Bar Association and a Juris Doctor candidate, will deliver the invocation.

Let us pray.

Almighty God, we humbly ask that you look with favor upon this group assembled before you. We ask you to bless in a very special way, the wonderful spouses, parents, families and friends who have exhibited so much devotion and sacrifice during our many years of education. We ask you to bless the Dean and the Faculty of Southern Methodist University School of Law in their pursuit of excellence.

In a more personal way, dear God, compel us to be just and honest in all our dealings. Let our motives be above suspicion. Let us be kind in our criticism of others and slow to judge, knowing that we ourselves must one day be judged. Dear God, we ask that you provide spiritual sustenance for us, the graduates of Southern Methodist University School of Law. Give us the strength of character to preserve the integrity of our profession. Help us to realize always that our first duty as lawyers is to serve our fellow man and, in so doing, to serve you. Guide us to become public servants in the finest tradition of the legal profession.

And, finally, Dear God, let us remember the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi:

Where there is charity and wisdom, there is neither fear nor ignorance. Where there is patience and humility, there is neither anger nor vexation. Where there is poverty and joy, there is neither greed nor avarice. Where there is peace and meditation, there is neither anxiety nor doubt.

Amen

Statement of the Dean:

Mr. President, Mr. President Emeritus, Mr. Provost, members of the faculty and staff of the School of Law, candidates for the various degrees in law, parents, spouses, children, relatives, members of the bench and bar, distinguished guests and friends all.

It is a great pleasure for me to welcome you here on this happy day, and on behalf of the entire Law School community I extend to the degree candidates our warmest good wishes and congratulations.

The first law school class of Southern Methodist University started in the fall of 1925 and graduated in the spring of 1928 just fifty years ago this month with a total of eleven members. This fifty-first class has 211 candidates for the Juris Doctor degree, eighteen for the Master of Comparative Law degree, twenty-six for the Master of Laws degree, and two candidates for the degree of Doctor of the Science of Law. These numbers include those who completed the requirements for their respective degrees in August, 1977, December, 1977, and May, 1978, all of whose names are listed on the program for this ceremony and on the official University Commencement program which will be distributed tomorrow afternoon. In addition, there are participating with us today candidates for degrees in August, 1978, whose names are separately set out on the program.

We honor each individual member of this class of 1978, for each one of you has worked diligently for your own particular personal achievement of this day, but for some there are matters of special mention to which I now call your attention. If you will consult your programs, you will note the names of members of the class who have won special prizes and awards and the names of individuals and organizations who have made these prizes and awards possible. To the winners go our special congratulations and to the donors our gratitude for their support of quality and excellence in academic performance.

Yesterday afternoon the faculty of the School of Law met to approve the degree candidates for presentation to the President of the University. They have designated Thomas Alden Graves to receive his Juris Doctor degree Magna Cum Laude and eleven members of the class to receive their degrees of Juris Doctor Cum Laude. Their names are listed in the program and you can also identify each of them by a special red and blue talisman which each one wears on his or her right sleeve.

Thomas Alden Graves is also designated as the Standard Bearer for the Class of 1978 and he will lead the procession of candidates for the formal hooding.

Last night the Order of the Coif formally inducted twenty-one members of the senior class into that society. The new members of Coif are listed on the program, and you can also recognize each of them by the special white linen circular coif which each one wears on his or her mortarboard, or academic cap. The Order of the Coif in this country honors excellence in legal scholarship and is the extension of the ancient English order of the Coif which has been in almost continuous existence since the Norman Conquest in 1066.

Ms. Barbara Jean Houser has been elected to the Order of the Barristers, a National Order whose purpose is the encouragement of oral advocacy and brief-writing skills through effective Law School Appellate Moot Court Programs.

The School of Law offers with the Edwin L. Cox School of Business the joint degree of Juris Doctor—Master of Business Administration. You will note the names of five students completing this joint degree program. They will also appear on the University Commencement program in the listing of degree candidates of the Edwin L. Cox School of Business.

I call your attention to these matters of special mention but I repeat with emphasis that we honor and congratulate each and every degree candidate of 1978. For each one has been examined and sifted and screened and tested and reexamined through at least eight years of grammar school, four years of high school, four years of college and many through one or two years of graduate work and finally three or more years of law school. Thus each in his or her own way justly deserves the rewards of this day.

I know that I speak for all the members of this class in expressing thanks and appreciation today to many people. Mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters, uncles, aunts, grandparents and in-laws—all have contributed not only in many cases with their financial resources but also of equal importance with their encouragement, their love, and their personal concern.

Many have come from great distances to be here today. The record, however, must surely belong to Mr. and Mrs. Chi Liang Hsueh, who have come from Taipei, Taiwan, Republic of China, to be with their son, Robert Weichen Hsueh, a candidate for the Juris Doctor degree.

Special thanks go to husbands and wives of law students and to children of law students. The Law Partners Club—whose members are spouses of law students—are our ushers today and this contribution of their help is one of their many splendid services which they render to this school throughout the year.

In this connection there is a husband and wife team graduating today. They are Frank C. Hider, Jr. and Judith Lynne Hider. Frank is a candidate for the degree of Master of Laws and Judith is a candidate for the degree of Juris Doctor. They met at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee, were married ten years ago and have one child, Scott, age seven. They both plan to practice law but not in the same firm.

Law firms, alumni, trustees, representatives of the Board of Visitors, representatives of the University central administration and friends of the Law School are all here today to honor this class and I speak for the class in thanking all of you for being with us.

And finally to Law faculty, Law School staff and law librarians all of whom have worked so splendidly this year I express for myself, and all our students, our sincerest appreciation.

Commencement is a time of endings and beginnings. Ms. Beatrice Elizabeth Johnson long time legal clinic secretary, retires this month. She was born in Greenville, Texas, and attended Southern Methodist University and the University of Texas at Austin. She is married to an attorney, Lee Tally Johnson, Jr. and they have two children, Mollye and Lee, III. Ms. Johnson came to the Law School in February, 1965, and has served the Legal Clinic with great loyalty and efficiency for thirteen years. We will miss her very much.

Ms. Johnson will you please stand and let us thank you.

The Board of Trustees at its regular meeting last week approved the promotion to the rank of Associate Professor of Law of Roark Michael Reed, Director of the Criminal Law Clinic, and approved the appointment to tenured rank of Associate Professor Vincent Steven Walkowiak.

Professors Reed and Walkowiak, will you please stand and let us congratulate you.

During the spring semester Professor Guenter Treitel of Oxford University was a visiting professor of law. He could not be with us today for he had to return to Oxford to begin a series of lectures there. Professor Treitel has just been appointed to the Vinerian Chair in English Law at Oxford. The first occupant of the Vinerian Chair was the noted Sir William Blackstone, who authored Blackstone's Commentaries. I know that you join me in congratulating Professor Treitel on this singular and most deserved honor.

This is the close of the fifty-third academic year of this Law School and the sixty-third academic year of the University. In November, 1967, the Trustees of the University substituted for the Bachelor of Laws degree the more appropriate Juris Doctor degree. In the spring of 1972 we began the observance of this annual custom of the formal hooding of doctoral candidates—a custom dating back to medieval times. The heralds' trumpets, the solemn procession, the flags which identify the particular state or country from which the graduates come, the presentation and hooding of the degree candidates—are all traditional rites, the historic origins of which can be found in the detailed chronicles of the great medieval universities of Bologna, Montpellier, Paris, Salamanca, Oxford, and Cambridge. In those days there were not only the solemn academic and religious ceremonies but also much feasting, merry-making, jousts, and tournaments that attended graduation.

The chroniclers of those times tell that the residents of the college towns were relieved when it was over, for there were numerous accounts of clashes of town and gown oftentimes with serious injury and even death. Furthermore, the chroniclers tell us that the worst offenders were law students and medical students who were more boisterous and unruly than the others and frequently mixed it up in tavern brawls. There are those who say that milder forms of this custom continue in this country to this day.

In connection with the doctoral hooding there is, however, a custom we do not observe. The doctoral candidate of medieval times was required to read his thesis—usually in Latin—to his fellow students before receiving the doctoral hood, and it was the custom, we are told, for his peers to jeer and whistle and catcall with great disrespect while the candidate was trying to be serious. Today we spare the candidate such an ordeal.

As I reflected on what I might say to this distinguished group of graduates, I realized that I have a very special personal connection with this class, for at almost precisely this very moment about two hundred miles to the south of us my third child and second son is receiving his Juris Doctor degree from the University of Texas at Austin. He, therefore, is a contemporary of most of the members of this class and on thinking about his experiences I am sure that I accurately review the experiences of many of the Law Class of 1978 both here and throughout the country.

Born in the first Eisenhower administration in 1953—indeed, just the day following the General's inauguration—my son was just starting the second grade at the time of the Kennedy-Nixon debates of 1960, and with his classmates in the fifth grade he watched with shock the televised accounts of the events surrounding the assassination of President Kennedy in 1963. In high school he and his fellows shared a growing uneasiness and nagging anxiety about the war in Vietnam. Who would have to go? Would it never end?

Those were times of turbulence in high schools and colleges—marches, protests, demonstrations, even tragedies such as one about which we have been reminded only recently that occurred in 1970 at Kent State University in Ohio.

The concerns about Vietnam continued in college. But the headlines began to speak of an ominous new issue, a domestic scandal which will go down in our national history by the single word Watergate.

A President resigned, a new President took over, the Vietnam war ground to a sudden close, an administration was turned out of office, a new President from the South came in, a nation which had looked upon its energy sources as inexhaustible found itself in an energy crisis, the dollar's value was riddled abroad as inflation ravaged us at home.

With so many of such real life experiences packed in the first 25 years of life, what can anyone really add by way of wisdom or counsel? Indeed, any member of this class could counsel all of us. In fact, my son—now my son, the lawyer—has been telling me more often recently how impressed he is with how much his mother and I have managed to learn since he was eighteen. And I am sure that every parent here has been told something similar.

Of one thing we can all be sure, it won't get any easier. Experts repeatedly tell us that the energy crisis is real and that it is permanent, and extensive new legal and administrative rules will be required to deal with it.

Major shifts in population from the north and east to the south and west will continue, creating major problems both in the communities left and in those cities which will experience rapid growth.

We are advised that there will be huge shifts in the population age distribution so that by the year 2000 the retired work force could be larger than the active working force, an eventuality which could cause serious economic dysfunctions despite a new retirement age of 70 or even older.

Movements from farm to city, changes in patterns and styles of living, demands for leisure time and leisure goods all portend new problems with which we will have to deal.

Engineers forecast a veritable explosion of new technologies based on microchip circuitry. Television, home computers, telephones, and high fidelity systems will be linked to permit us to do all sorts of functions quickly and conveniently from home. The conference call will employ these linked systems to save the time and expense of travel to business meetings. The way the nation's business is done and the way in which it is regulated will change substantially.

When most of this class was born in 1953, the total federal budget was about fifty billion dollars. Senator Robert Taft, a leading Republican member of the Senate in those days, promised that if General Eisenhower were elected, the administration would cut twenty-five billion dollars out of the budget in six months, and more economies would come later.

Now the size of the Federal budget is almost a half trillion—numbers that boggle the mind and are beyond our capacity to comprehend. But it does not stop here, for local and state governments and the National Government are being pressed to do even more in delivery of new and different services to the public.

For lawyers what does it all mean? It means a continuing proliferation of new laws and regulations and controversies as the society and its institutions become inevitably more complex. All of this will not make lawyers more popular or more loved.

Not long ago the Chief Justice of the United States chided us for poor performance in the courts, saying that half of the lawyers are incompetent. The American Bar Association's response, which can only be characterized as astounding, was that the fraction was more nearly like a third rather than a half. Hardly much comfort to the public in general! A better response would have been that law schools, including this Law School, are cooperating with the practicing bar in offering an increasingly extensive program of continuing legal education courses to maintain and improve the knowledge and skills of members of the legal professions.

Recently, the President of the United States scolded Government lawyers for producing massive piles of incomprehensible regulations, and more recently scolded lawyers generally for overcharging and underrepresenting the public. A weekly news magazine in a recent feature story on lawyers commented with sarcasm that parents had to send their offspring to law school so that their sons and daughters would not face the world defenseless.

And as late as yesterday morning, Mary McGrory, a nationally syndicated columnist, commenting on President Carter's statement to the Los Angeles Bar Association that we are overlawyered in this country, suggested to the President that the solution to the Middle East problem was to send lawyers instead of warplanes. She said that if every member of the Saudi royal family took 10 lawyers—perhaps for a given number of barrels of oil—we could unload 10,000 in no time at all and even smuggle in a few feminists in the package who would enjoy liberating a harem. She also suggested exporting some judges, clerks, bailiffs, court stenographers, and, of course, deans of law schools as an effective measure to reduce unemployment figures at home.

Despite these slings and arrows, and barbs and jibes, the hard truth is that lawyers and legal institutions are indispensable for the shaping and application of those wise restraints which enable free men to live in community. And if those restraints are to function properly there must be capable and competent lawyers to draft the necessary rules and regulations, to interpret them, and to resolve the conflicts that arise under them.

We know that you have that capability and competence and that you can with commensurate skill effectively grapple with the increasingly complex problems that will surely occur in our future national life. Moreover, we know that you will apply not only the excellent technical knowledge learned here but also that in all legal actions you will always be governed by standards of fairness, decency, honesty, and good faith.

All of us are proud of what you have done and expect great things in what you will do as members of an ancient, honorable and noble profession.

And now the formal hooding will begin. Professor William Paul Streng, Joseph Webb McKnight, and Roy Ryden Anderson will hood the candidates for the Juris Doctor degree.

We have here today Alumni who have a son, husband or wife, graduating. They are with the stage party and will be called at the appropriate time to participate in the Hooding Ceremony.

Peggy Lee Bunch will be hooded by her husband, John William Bunch, Class of 1976.

Kelly Jack Coghlan will be hooded by his father, Howard Payne Coghlan, Class of 1950.

Gabriel Hawkins Golden, II, will be hooded by his father, Gabriel Hawkins Golden, Class of 1930.

Marsha L. Hunter will be hooded by her father, Emmett Marshall Hunter, Class of 1936.

Harold Darlington Mallory will be hooded by his wife Kathryn Campbell Mallory, Class of 1977.

Christopher Warren Mims will be hooded by his father, Samuel McPherson Mims, Jr., Class of 1954, and Philipa Marie Remington will be hooded by her husband, William Patrick Remington, Class of 1974.

Mr. David McDonald Prichard, immediate past President of the Student Bar Association, will present the Juris Doctor candidates. Mr. Prichard will you please proceed to be hooded first.

Ms. Gwen Marie Eisenstein, immediate past Vice President of the Student Bar Association will now proceed to be hooded.

Will the other candidates please come forward and will the audience please hold your applause until all candidates have been presented.

(The Juris Doctor Candidates are presented.)

We have here at the Law School each year lawyers, judges, and prosecutors from the Far East, the Middle East, South America and Europe who are engaged in a program of study leading to the Master of Comparative Law degree.

Professor Aaron Joshua Thomas, Jr., Chairman of the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies, will present these candidates.

(The Candidates for the Master of Comparative Law degree are presented.)

We have here at the Law School each year a number of students in full time study and a number of practicing lawyers in part time study leading to the Master of Laws degree.

Professor Thomas will present these candidates.

(The Candidates for the Master of Laws degree are presented.)

You will note in the program that there are two candidates for the Doctor of the Science of Law degree. They could not be here today.

What you have witnessed is the end product of good teaching and good learning. In that regard, will all the faculty of the School of Law please stand and will all the degree candidates please stand and turn around to the audience so that we may express our thanks and congratulations to you.

Because of the onset of a hard rain before this ceremony, you saw what Irving Dreibrodts calls "instant show biz." All of the hoods, flowers, equipment, and paraphernalia were brought here by the splendid cooperation of members of the Mustang Band, students, staff, Randy West of the class of 1977, and others who set up this entire ceremony in McFarlin Auditorium in a matter of minutes.

I know that you join me in expressing our admiration for the quickness and efficiency with which this was done.

Following the conclusion of this ceremony, we invite everyone to the reception in Lawyers Inn.

All the buildings in the Law Quadrangle will remain open. Please visit about as you may wish.

The Baccalaureate service in the morning is at 10:30 a.m. at McFarlin Auditorium and the Commencement Exercises are at 2:00 p.m. in Moody Coliseum. You may come to the Dean's office in Storey Hall at 3:30 tomorrow and all next week for your diplomas.

Will you please remain seated until the stage party and the degree candidates have left the auditorium.

Thank you and we wish you a good evening.
